Cabins at Camp Reed

Classroom

YMCA Camp Reed was established in 1915 with a land grant of 15 acres from Frank and Emma Reed, a "very generous couple concerned with the welfare of children." Today Camp Reed owns over 555 acres on beautiful, yet hidden, Fan Lake. Plus, there are another 2,000 acres adjacent on which to train. YMCA Camp Reed is the oldest resident camp in the Inland Northwest

The old original sleeping cabins were torn down by one of the work parties about 1934. They divided up the work parties into teams and ran a contest to see who could wreck their cabin first. This contest was won almost single handed by a student from Gonzaga, the leader of the Pep Band and a great favorite. He was not very tall but he weighed around 250 pounds and he practically pushed over one of the cabins all by himself and his team won the contest. The first shower house with hot water available was made out of poles and slabs on the cement floor. The tanks were seconds secured from a welding company for 50 cents each. Coils of pipe heated by an open fire, fed by down limbs of trees of which they had plenty, furnished the campers with hot water for showers. Since then new shower houses and cabins have been built.
